

Ocean Club Sales Affirm Market Confidence

If you want in at Ocean Club Waterfront Condominiums [map], a joint Graywood Developments and Beaverhall Homes project, you'll want to think about making a downwind reach (sailing terminology...anyone?) toward the presentation centre.

Ocean Club opened for sale to the public on Nov 6th and are already at 70% sold out, dispelling any lingering views that confidence in the market is anything but robust.

Of course, sales are always helped when a development has certain things to offer: Innovative design that suggests a rather massive sailboat, executed with blue glass that will reflect the lake? Check.

All the amenities you could need, including a hip bistro at the building's base? Yep.

19,000 square feet of surrounding landscaping intended to emulate Vancouver's iconic waterfront? Why not.

What Ocean Club will look like, but smaller.

Views of the lobby, vast windows and all

Though renewed consumer confidence and the condominium itself go a long way to explaining Ocean Club's pace of sales, the fact that this project may constitute one of the last chances to own a place on Etobicoke's waterfront might also be a factor.
